SUBJECT: Public Appearances by FBIS Personnel

Following are the kinds of public appearances usually made by FBIS personnel:

1. Production and Analysis Group officers occasionally present papers at professional or academic conferences.
2. Chief, JPRS has occasionally participated as a panel member at sessions of the American Translators Association annual meetings. Panels deal with the art or economics of the translating profession.
3. Officers sometimes accompany Agency recruiters to campuses and give informal talks on foreign language career opportunities to department heads, placement officers, or students.
4. Analysis Group analysts occasionally attend national or regional conferences held annually by such organizations as the American Association of Asian Studies, the American Association of Chinese Studies, the American Political Science Association, and the International Studies Association.
5. Twelve to 15 analysts annually attend academic conferences, seminars and meetings of one type or another, whether as speakers, panelists or simply attendees. They are widely known and identified as FBIS though acknowledge Agency affiliation if asked.
